Preface

The Civic Education Teaching Module for Form 1 has been developed following the introduction of the Competence Based Curriculum (CBC) which marks a transformative step in improving education quality and relevance. This Teaching Module has been designed to support teachers navigate as they effectively deliver Civic Education lessons under the new curriculum. The module aims to bridge the gap created by the absence of approved textbooks and to equip educators with practical tools, activities, and assessments tailored to the learners' level and needs.

As a Ministry, we understand the challenges that come with transitioning to a new curriculum framework. This module reflects our commitment to making this journey as smooth as possible for teachers, by providing structured guidance, suggested activities, and formative assessments that align with the CBC's objectives. However, teachers are encouraged to supplement this module with their own research and innovations to address any gaps that may arise during implementation.

The suggested activities and assessments provided in this module are designed to foster practical and critical thinking skills in learners while ensuring relevance and adaptability to different school contexts. Teachers are encouraged to tailor these suggestions to their unique classroom dynamics and to explore alternative, acceptable approaches when necessary.

We hope this module will serve as a valuable resource for teachers as they navigate the new competence-based curriculum, enhancing their ability to inspire and equip learners with essential competences, knowledge, skills and attitudes that prepare them to live responsible lives and be protected from life threatening vices

Acknowledgement

The Civic Education Teaching Module has been developed through a consultative and participatory process. Many individuals, institutions and organisations were consulted and accorded an opportunity to make proposals about the content to be included in the teaching module.

We would, therefore, like to express our profound gratitude to individuals, institutions and organisations that provided the financial and technical input to the successful development of this teaching module. These include; Teachers, Lecturers from Colleges of Education and Universities, Subject Associations, Civil Society Organisations, and Cooperating Partners.

Finally, we appreciate the commitment and hard work of the staff at the Curriculum Development Centre in ensuring the successful completion of the syllabi development process.

How to use this Teaching Module

To effectively use this Civic Education Teaching Module for Form 1:

- ☐ Read and familiarise yourself fully with the module's content, learning activities, and assessment to understand what learners will learn.
- ☐ Use the module's suggested teaching and learning activities to come up with a lesson plan specifically meant for your learners
- ☐ Use a variety of teaching methods, including demonstrations, discussions, group work to connect the module's content to real-life scenarios and current events
- ☐ Encourage active learning by asking open-ended questions, promoting critical thinking, analytical thinking and fostering problem-solving skills.
- ☐ Assess learners' learning regularly, using the module's suggested assessment strategies and tools.
- ☐ Provide feedback and support to learners, helping them to identify areas for improvement and develop their skills.
- ☐ Monitor learner progress and adjust your teaching strategies as needed, to ensure that all learners meet the learning objectives

By following these steps, you can effectively use this Civics Education Teaching Module for Form 1 to support your teaching and promote learning

Introduction

The Civic Education Teaching Module covers topics for term 2. The Teaching Module has been developed in line with Competence Based Curriculum (CBC) in order to support teachers navigate as they effectively deliver Civic Education lessons under the new curriculum. The main aim of the module to bridge the gap created by the absence of approved teaching and learning instructional materials responsive to the Competence Based Curriculum. Further it is envisaged that the module will equip necessary information, practical tools, activities, and assessments tailored to the learners' level and needs. It must be emphasised that the module is not a traditional course book or lesson plan, instead, it is designed to be used in conjunction with other resources and materials, and provides a framework for teachers to design and deliver instruction that is tailored to the needs, and abilities of their learners. and learning environments.

The suggested activities and assessments provided in this module are designed to foster practical and twenty first Century skills in learners while ensuring relevance and adaptability to different school contexts. Teachers are therefore encouraged to tailor these suggestions to their unique classroom dynamics and to explore alternative, acceptable approaches when and where necessary. It is hoped that this module will serve as a valuable resource for teachers as they navigate the new competence-based curriculum, enhancing their ability to inspire and equip learners with essential competences, knowledge, skills, values and attitude are aimed at enabling learners to live and grow into productive and useful members of their communities and the Zambian society.

Suggested Teaching and Learning Materials

Teaching and learning materials play a crucial role in facilitating effective learning. For Civic Education, these materials are particularly important because they help learners develop critical thinking, problem solving, and citizenship skills. The following are some of the reasons why teaching and learning materials are significant:

1. Enhance understanding: Teaching and learning materials help learners grasp complex civic concepts.
2. Promote engagement: Interactive materials encourage participation and discussion.
3. Develop critical thinking: Materials like case studies and scenarios foster critical thinking and problem-solving

The following are some examples of teaching and learning materials for Civic Education: textbooks, case studies, videos, role-playing activities, newspapers/articles, civic education websites, Guest speakers and debate topics

Learning Environment Set Up

The learning environment set up can provide a comprehensive framework for designing learning experiences and assessments that are relevant, practical, and effective in developing learners' competencies

1. Natural Environment: Real-world settings, such as workplaces, communities, or everyday life situations.
2. Artificial Environment: Simulated or controlled settings, such as classrooms, training rooms, or simulations.
3. Technological Environment: Digital platforms, tools, and resources, such as online learning platforms, simulations, or virtual reality.

Suggested Teaching Methodology

In a competence-based curriculum, the following methodologies can be effective:

1. Project-based learning: Encourages learners to apply skills and knowledge to real-world projects.
2. Problem-based learning: Develops critical thinking and problem-solving skills through real-world scenarios.
3. Discussion-based learning: Encourage learners to discuss civic issues, promoting critical thinking and problem-solving.
4. Guest speakers and field trips: Invite experts and organize field trips to provide students with hands-on experience and exposure to civic institutions.
5. Case studies: Analyses real-life situations, promoting critical thinking and decision-making.
6. Role-playing: Develops practical skills, such as communication and teamwork. For example, se role-playing activities to demonstrate civic concepts, such as voting or community engagement
7. Simulations: Mimics real-world situations, allowing learners to practice and apply skills in a controlled environment. For example, Organize simulations of civic processes, such as mock elections or town hall meetings.
8. Inquiry-based learning: Encourages learners to explore and investigate topics, developing critical thinking and research skill
9. Media analysis: Analyse media coverage of civic issues, teaching learners to critically evaluate information
10. Service learning: Integrates community service with academic learning, promoting civic engagement and skill development
11. Group work: Assign group projects that promote teamwork, collaboration, and community engagement

Time Allocation

The standard period allocation for Civic Education for Ordinary Level Secondary School has been prescribed in the Zambia Education Curriculum Framework (ZECF) of 2023. The minimum learner-teacher contact time for the Ordinary Level Secondary School is 3 hours and 20 minutes per week, translating into five (5) periods for the learning area. The duration of a single period at this level is 40 minutes

Assessment

In a Competence-Based Curriculum (CBC), assessments should focus on evaluating learners' ability to apply civic knowledge, skills, and values in real-world contexts. Some suitable assessment types include:

1. Performance tasks: Learners complete tasks that mimic real-world civic scenarios.
2. Project-based assessments: Learners work on projects that demonstrate civic competencies.
3. Portfolio assessments: Learners collect and reflect on their civic learning experiences.
4. Debates and discussions: Learners participate in debates and discussions on civic issues.

5. Service learning projects: Learners to engage in community service projects that demonstrate civic engagement.
6. Case study analyses Learners analyse real-world civic cases and propose solutions.
7. Reflective journals: Learners reflect on their civic learning experiences and value

The Role of a Teacher

In a Competence-Based Curriculum (CBC) for Civic Education, the teacher's role is multifaceted. By adopting the following roles, teachers can help learners develop the competencies needed to become informed, engaged, and responsible citizens:

1. Facilitator: Guides learners in exploring civic concepts and issues.
2. Mentor: Supports learners in developing critical thinking, problem-solving, and decision-making skills.
3. Coach: Encourages learners to take ownership of their learning and civic engagement.
4. Assessor: Evaluates learners' competencies and provides feedback.
5. Resource person: Provides relevant resources and information to support learner learning
6. To create a learning environment that promotes: critical thinking and analysis, active participation and engagement, collaboration and teamwork, reflection and self-assessment and application of civic skills and knowledge in real-life contexts

1.5 POLITICAL PARTIES

INTRODUCTION

This topic aims to introduce learners to the concept of political parties. It provides an understanding of the structure of a political party and how it is organised. The topic has two subtopics; Political Party and Political Party Systems. This topic is important in the sense that it promotes understanding of democracy, democratic processes and provides insight on the operations of political parties. Further, the topic exposes learners to the importance of tolerance-enabling them to appreciate divergent views in life, empathy and analytical skills to understand different political beliefs, thereby preparing them for future leadership roles.

General Competences
Critical Thinking	Analyse the structure and organisation of a political party

HOOK

What would happen in a democratic nation without political parties?

Key Terms

Political Party: A group of people who come together with a view of governing a nation

Political Power: the ability to influence or direct the actions, beliefs or conduct of individuals or groups.

Ideology: A set of beliefs, values and principles that shape understanding of the world and provide guidance to actions. Ideology can be political, social, economic or cultural in nature.

Accountability: Leaders being answerable to citizens for their actions.

Transparency: The openness of leaders in their decisions and actions.

Party Manifesto: A document that contains the values and plans of a political party towards the nation.

One- Party System- a political system in which only one party is allowed to exist and hold power

Bi- Party System- a political system in which two major parties dominate the political landscape. It can also be called a two-party system

Multi- Party System- signifies the existence of many political parties, big and small in the country. They alternate power, to more than two political parties.

1.5.1 POLITICAL PARTY*Introduction

This subtopic provides insights in understanding political parties and how they operate. It further outlines how leaders are chosen and how political parties interact with citizens in society. Through this sub topic learner will learn how political parties provide a platform for citizens to participate in decision-making process.

Specific Competence

Learners to: Analyse the Organisation and Structure of a Political Party

Learning Activities

Describing a political party

Learning environment set up:

This activity can be held from a classroom set-up.

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Pictures or videos showing activities of a party

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Role-play

Activity Process

Divide the class into groups, and assign the following tasks for simulation

- ☐ each group design and form a mock political party
- ☐ each group to come up with a party manifesto and include key issues such as a party logo, ideology and campaign materials
- ☐ groups hold a mock meeting to discuss their key issues and ideology and party leaders explain their importance
- ☐ groups present their key issues and ideology
- ☐ hold a plenary session with learners to give explanations on the importance of having clarity of a political party's intentions

Content Tips*A political party

A political party is a group of citizens who organize themselves with a common value, ideas and a goal towards forming government. A political party represents an alternative government in a country. Political parties originate from different aspects of our communities.

The following are some of the factors that lead to the formation of political parties:

- ☐ Ideological differences: disagreements over ideology, principles and policies can lead to the formation of new parties.

- ❑ Economic interests: disagreements over economic policies and interests can lead to party formation
- ❑ Charismatic leaders: individuals with persuasive and compelling attitudes can lead others in the formation of a political party
- ❑ Human nature (inborn differences): by nature, people differ in the way they understand and look at issues of life. Therefore, differences in opinion lead people to form political parties
- ❑ Religious and communal sentiments: some people form political parties according to their religious beliefs
- ❑ Regional and geographic interests: parties may form to represent the interests of specific regions or geographic areas. For example, in the United States of America, the Republican Party initially represented the interests of the Northern states, while the Democratic Party, the Southern states
- ❑ Social and cultural issues: parties may form around social and cultural issues such as slavery, civil rights or immigration
- ❑ Historical events and crises: major historical events such as wars, economic depressions or social unrest may lead to the formation of parties.

Learning Activities

Differentiating between ruling party and an opposition party

Learning Environment Set Up:

This activity can be conducted from a classroom environment

Teaching and Learning Materials: Charts showing responses from learners, depicting the ruling and opposition parties' roles and responsibilities

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Group work

Activity Process

Divide the learners into groups and assign them activities to identify the different roles played by the ruling and opposition Political Parties based on the Zambian scenario.

Each group to make a presentation based on the discussion.

Content Tips

Differences between the ruling and opposition parties

a. Ruling party

- ☐ The ruling party is the political party which governs a country after winning elections and holds the governing power.
- ☐ It forms the executive arm of government (cabinet) headed by the president which is responsible for policy formulation and implementation.
- ☐ In the legislature, the ruling party initiates laws through public bills in line with its vision and development goals as enshrined in the party manifesto.
- ☐ It mobilises citizens to support national initiatives and government programmes.

b. Opposition party

- ☐ An opposition political party is any political party which is not in government but works to provide checks and balances on the ruling party. This is done by questioning the actions, policies and decisions of government in power.
- ☐ It ensures that the government remains answerable to the citizens by holding government accountable for its actions
- ☐ It provides a healthy democracy by ensuring that government is accountable, transparent and responsive to the needs of the citizens.
- ☐ It presents alternative policies and programmes for development purposes and stands as an alternative government.
- ☐ It educates the public on important national and international issues
- ☐ Opposition political parties raise public debates that in turn force government consider popular concerns in the interest of the public

Learning Activities

Outlining the structure of a political party (National Executive Committee, Provincial Executive Committee, District Executive Committee, Constituency Committee, Sections and Branches)

Learning environment Set Up:

This activity can be conducted from a classroom set up

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Charts on which learners draw their diagramming responses to visualize the structure of political parties, depicting the centralised and the decentralised types of party structures

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Group work

Activity Process

Organise the class as a political party with structures at National, Provincial, District, Constituency, Ward and Section levels.

Let each structure apportion positions to its members

Content Tips

Political Party Structure

Every political party is structured as follows:

- a. The National Executive Committee (NEC): this is the highest organ of the party which is made up of senior elected party members
- b. The Provincial Committee (PEC): this is a political party organ which administers party affairs at the provincial level headed by elected chairperson
- c. The District Executive Committee (DEC): this is a political party organ established in every district headed by the district chairperson.
- d. The Constituency Committee: this is a party organ which is answerable to the district executive and is responsible for managing the affairs of a political party at constituency level.
- e. Ward and Sections or Branch Committee: These are lower organs within the party structure responsible for mobilizing grassroots membership for a political party.

Key Positions in Political parties

At every level within the political party structure are individuals holding various key positions which include:

Party President: This is a leader of a political party who becomes a party candidate in the election.

Party Chairperson: This is a person responsible for managing the general affairs of a political party.

Secretary general: This is the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of the party responsible for the day-to-day operations of the political party

Party Treasurer: This is the official who manages the finances of a political party

Committee Chairpersons: A political party contains various committees responsible for various operations and levels of the political party. Each of these committees is headed by a chairperson.

Learning Activities

Describing the functions of a political party (Educate citizens, provide alternative leadership, providing checks and balances ...)

Learning Environment Set Up:

This activity can be conducted from a classroom environment

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Chart showing functions of a political party

Suggested Teaching and Learning Method:

Debate, Guest speaker and field trip

Activity Process*1. Guest Speaker

- ☐ Invite a guest speaker (an expert) to give a talk on the functions of a political party or visit a nearby political party office.
- ☐ Learners listen, take down some important points and ask questions based on the talk

2. Debate

- ☐ Organise a debate on the importance of political parties.
- ☐ Hold a plenary session, discussing the importance of political parties

Learning Activities

Dramatising a political campaign activity (meeting)

Learning Environment setup:

This activity can be held from a classroom set up.

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Pictographic representation of a political campaign and materials to hold mock elections

Suggested Teaching Methods:

role play or simulation

Activity Process

Dramatisation

1. Teacher to divide class into a few groups (as political parties) to dramatize an elections campaign to elect a class monitor or members of a student council.
 - ☐ Each group should represent a political party with pseudonyms of party names
 - ☐ Each group to choose a learner to act as a candidate for elections
 - ☐ Teacher to guide learners to act as party candidates in the preparation for their campaign messages in order to win voters over
 - ☐ Party candidates present their campaign messages to the class (the audience)
 - ☐ The audience listens and ask them questions
 - ☐ Teacher and learners to summarise the importance of political campaigns

Content Tips

- ☐ A political party campaign is a selling of political ideas to the public in order to win the support of the public.
- ☐ it involves the dissemination of political party message to the public through rallies, debates, door to door canvassing, social media engagements and town hall meetings
- ☐ every political party has rights to disseminate information about its policies and ideologies as a means towards winning people's trust to gain the votes

Expected Standard

Structure and organisation of a political party analysed accordingly

Assessment

1. Essay

Imagine you have been elected as a leader of your party. Explore the strategies you would use to organise the party in order to win elections and form government.

2. Project

Conduct a research on the importance of women and youth participation in political party structures.

1.5.2 POLITICAL PARTY SYSTEMS*INTRODUCTION

This sub-topic aims to introduce learners to the concept of political party systems. It provides an understanding of how each political party system is organised and operates. The importance of studying political party systems centres on how their operations influence governance.

Specific Competence

Learners to: Evaluate political party systems

Learning Activities

Creating a learner platform for campaigning

Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be done from either outside or inside the classroom set up

Teaching and Learning Materials:

a graphical presentation of the characteristics and functions of systems of political parties.

Suggested Teaching Method: Simulation

Activity Process

Organise an assembly for learners and ask those who want to be representatives to campaign in order to be elected into leadership roles such as class monitor, prefect, board member ...

Content Tips

Learners should be given an opportunity to participate in the governance of a school. As such the best way to choose representatives for learners into the school council or school board is to allow learners elect their own representatives. There is need for a workable platform for learners to campaign and be voted in. key features of a campaign platform include

- ☐ Campaign manifesto (name, position, promises and slogans)
- ☐ Campaign posters
- ☐ Public speaking opportunity

Learning Activities

Identifying party systems

Learning Environment Set Up:

this activity can be done from a classroom set up

Teaching and Learning Materials:

a graphical presentation of the characteristics and functions of systems of political parties.

Suggested Teaching Method:

Group work

Activity Process

Class Discussion

Arrange the class into three different group and give them country names to discuss the party systems

Country A: One party system

Country B: Two party system

Country C: Multi-party system

Each group to present their points based on the discussion

Content Tips

Kinds of Party Systems

The most basic way of classifying different party systems is One-Party System, Bi or two- Party System and Multi-Party System:

One-Party System: This is where a country only allows the existence of one political party.

Bi or Two-Party System: This is a situation where there are two major political parties in a country such as the Republican party and the Democrats in the United States of America or the Conservative Party and Labour Party in the United Kingdom. The two parties compete for political power Multi-Party System: this is where a country allows the formation of more political parties to compete for political power. A Good example is Zambia where there are more than 40 political parties.

Learning Activities

Comparing and contrasting political party systems (advantages and disadvantages)

Learning Environment Setup:

this activity can be done from a classroom set up

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Charts showing advantages and disadvantages of different political party systems

Suggested Teaching Method:

Debate

Activity Process*Class Debate

- Arrange the learners into two groups and ask them to debate on the advantages and disadvantages of One-Party and Multi-Party systems.
- After the debate hold the plenary session in which the entire class can bring out the advantages and disadvantages of the different party systems.

Content Tips

The One-Party, Bi- Party and the Multi-Party systems have both advantages and disadvantages.

One-Party SystemAdvantages

- ☐ One-party system brings about stable government as there is no power struggle among parties
- ☐ There is faster decision-making since there are no lengthy debates
- ☐ Implementing uniform policies becomes easier as there is no opposition to challenge or delay them
- ☐ One-party system can act as unifying factor, promoting national integration since there is no feelings to religious or ethnic differences
- ☐ A single party can easily mobilize resources quickly

Disadvantages of One-Party System

- ☐ There is lack of transparency and accountability since there is no opposition party to hold the ruling party answerable thereby promoting corruption.
- ☐ There is suppression of individual freedoms as one-party often suffocates individual voices and limits choices
- ☐ There is a risky of dictatorship as power is concentrated in one party
- ☐ One party may not represent the diverse interests and aspirations of people
- ☐ Without opposition political parties, there will be limited political debates leading to a lack of diverse views

- ☐ The lack of political competition can hinder social progress, as the ruling party may not be motivated to innovate or improve societal conditions

Bi-Party or Two-Party System

Advantages

- ☐ It ensures successful working of the parliamentary form of government in which the opposition members of parliament stand to provide checks and balances to the ruling party.
- ☐ There is stability of government as the ruling party typically holds the majority seats in parliament.
- ☐ The presence of the opposition party has natural effect on the efficiency of the ruling administration
- ☐ The opposition party provides an alternative for the citizens to change government
- ☐ Each major party plays a positive and constructive role in a bid to win the sympathy and gain political power

Disadvantages

- ☐ It limits the choice of the electorates to only two options.
- ☐ It can easily promote regionalism, racism or tribalism based on two political ideologies thereby undermining national unity.
- ☐ It promotes blind devotion to a political party as individuals are stuck between two political ideologies.

Multi-Party System

Advantages

- ☐ It gives a variety of choices to voters
- ☐ It gives adequate representation to numerous interests of people
- ☐ It promotes respect for people's choice of political belonging.
- ☐ It promotes political rights by enabling people the freedom to form political parties.
- ☐ Acts as a powerful check on the trend of dictatorial governance.

Disadvantages

- ☐ Large number of political parties creates a lot of confusion by encouraging small groups to enter into arena of struggle for power
- ☐ Too many political parties might hold different political ideologies some of which might be inimical to the wellbeing of a nation.
- ☐ It can easily promote instability in the country based on political differences thereby forcing mal administration.
- ☐ It undermines national unity and can easily lead to conflict

Learning Activities

Describing the history of Political Party Systems in Zambia

Learning Environment Set Up:

This activity can be done using online research as well as the natural setting

Teaching and Learning Materials:

pictures of historical events, charts with Zambia's political party history

Suggested Teaching Method:

Case Study

Activity Process*Case Study

Divide learners into groups and ask them to undertake a case study of Zambia's political history under the following themes:

- Multi-party system in the First Republic
- One- Party participatory system in the Second Republic
- Multi-party system in the Third Republic

In this research:

- learners to identify the salient features of one-party and multi-party systems in Zambia
- Learners to analyse the impact of the two systems on individual freedoms and general welfare of citizens.
- Learners to present their findings to the class in a diagrammatical presentation.

Content Tips*The History of Political Party System in Zambia

Since independence Zambia's political party system has changed from multiparty to one party and back to multiparty as illustrated in the table below:

Party System	Period	Major Political Parties	Party in Power
Multi-Party System	1964 to 1972	- United National Independence Party (UNIP) - African national Congress (ANC) - United Progressive Party (UPP)	United National Independence Party (UNIP)
One-Party System	1973 to 1991	United National Independence Party (UNIP)	United National Independence Party (UNIP)
Multi-Party System	1991 to Date	- Movement for Multiparty Democracy (MMD) - United National Independence Party (UNIP) - Patriotic Front (PF) - United Party for National Development (UPND)	MMD (1991 to 2011) PF (2011 to 2021) UPND (2021 to ...)

Expected StandardPolitical party systems evaluated accordingly*Assessment

1. Create a timeline of Zambia's political party systems, highlighting key events, milestones and major changes.

Read the scenario and answer the questions which follow

At independence Zambia inherited a multiparty system. However, the constitution of Zambia changed in 1973 recommending the establishment of a one-party participatory democracy. All opposition political parties were banned leaving only the ruling United National Independence party (UNIP). In 1991, the country reverted to multipartyism.

2. (a) Identify the shortcomings of a one-party political system.
- (b) Show how political parties have contributed to development and democracy in Zambia.
- (c) State the challenges faced by political parties in Zambia.
- (d) Briefly explain the developmental contribution made by the successive ruling parties in Zambia since independence.

UNIT SUMMARY

This topic covered issues pertaining to the concept of political party and political party systems. Specific issues include the following:

- ☐ What a political party is and factors that lead to the formation of political parties.
- ☐ Typical elements of a party structure
- ☐ The difference between the ruling party and the opposition parties.
- ☐ Different political party systems which include the One-Party System, Bi or Two-Party System and Multi-Party System
- ☐ The history of political party system in Zambia from independence to date.

1.6 LOCAL AND CENTRAL GOVERNMENT

Introduction

Governance of country can be done at Local or Central Government levels. This topic seeks to provide insight into how these levels of government operate. The topic has two sub-topics which include, Local Government in Zambia and House of Chiefs. Through this topic learners will be equipped with knowledge and skills relevant for understanding and participating in governance at local or central government levels.

General Competences

Analytical Thinking:	Examine functions of Local Government
Citizenship:	Demonstrate understanding of the history of Local Government
Collaboration:	Demonstrate understanding of the role of traditional rulers in the governance of the country
Critical Thinking:	Examine Organs of Central Government in Zambia
Emotional Intelligence:	Show understanding of the relationship between Central Government and Local Government

HOOK

What do you think is the danger when parents start performing tasks which should be performed by children in the family?

Key Terms

Local Government: Governance based on localised community at district level.

Central Government: Centralised governance system under the control of cabinet.

Local Council: The pillar of governance under the local government system where elected officials make decisions from.

Native Authority: a system of governance established during colonial rule in which local leaders were recognized and empowered by colonial administrations to manage their communities.

Mayor: The Political head of a city or Municipal Council

Councillor: A locally elected representative of the people from at ward level

Chief: A traditional ruler in charge of a chiefdom

Cabinet: A committee of senior government ministers responsible for controlling government policy under the headship of the President or Prime Minister.

Decentralisation: Transferring of decision-making powers from the central government to local government.

House of Chiefs: An institution established for selected traditional leaders to meet and deliberate on national legislative matters.

1.6.1 LOCAL GOVERNMENT IN ZAMBIA

Introduction

Zambia operates through both Local and Central Government systems. Local government is normally the decentralised system where power to govern is given to local authorities or councils to provide certain services to the communities at district level. Here learners will be given an opportunity to acquire more knowledge and competencies concerning the past and present trends in local authorities in Zambia.

Specific Competence

Learners to: Demonstrate understanding of Local Government

Learning Activity

Examining the history of local government in Zambia

Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be carried out from a classroom setup.

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Printed photos of key leaders

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Guest Speaker

Activity Process

1. Guest Speaker

- Identify a retired council employee or any senior citizen with information on how councils used to operate in the past. Invite him or her or take the learners to him or her to share the history of local government in Zambia.
- Put learners in groups to discuss what they gathered from the presentation or field visit and make group presentation.

2. Timeline creation activity

- Divide learners into groups to create a timeline showing major milestones such as:
 - Pre-colonial traditional leadership
 - Colonial era Native Authorities
 - Post-independence local councils
 - Decentralisation reforms (e.g., 1991, 2013)

Content Tips

- ❑ Before independence, the British Colonial administration ruled through traditional leaders or native authorities.
- ❑ Native authorities assisted the colonial government in collecting taxes, issuing licences and presiding over civil cases.
- ❑ After independence, Zambia enacted the Local Government Act Number 69 of 1965 which created four types of councils; City Councils, Municipal Councils Township Councils and Rural Councils.
- ❑ In 1980, the Local government and Decentralisation Act was enacted which placed all council under the control of District Governors
- ❑ In 1991, the Local Government and Decentralisation Act of 1980 was amended creating the current three types of autonomous councils; City (for cities), Municipal (For Provincial Headquarters and other big towns) and District Councils (for small towns or districts).
- ❑ The 2019 Local Government Act outlines the three main types of Local Councils based on the size and status of the area they govern. The three are City councils, Municipal Councils and Town Councils.

Learning Activities

Examining the structure of the local councils (city council, municipal council and town council)

Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be conducted outside the class or school environment

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Chart showing the structure of the Local Councils

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Field Trip

Activity Process*1. Field Visit

- Take learners on a field visit to the nearby local council to have first-hand information on the structure and functions of the Council and how councils raise revenue.
- After the field trip, place learners in groups to present what they learnt during the visit regarding the structure of the Local Councils. (Functions and revenue collection will be discussed in the next activities)
- Learners draw or label a diagram showing Local Authorities (urban and rural councils)

Content Tips

- ❑ Under the current Local Government Act, City and Municipal Councils are headed by Mayors while District Councils are administered by Council Chairpersons together with Ward Councillors as Decision Makers.
- ❑ The administrative functions of the City and Municipal Councils are placed under the Town Clerk while the Town Councils are under the Council Secretary working with Directors of various Departments.

THE STRUCTURE OF LOCAL COUNCILS

COUNCIL TYPE	POLITICAL HEAD (For Decision Making)	ADMINISTRATIVE HEAD (For Implementing Programmes)
City Councils	Mayor working with ward councillors	Town Clerk working with Directors of Departments
Municipal Councils	Mayor working with ward councillors	Town Clerk working with Directors of Departments
Town Councils	Council Chairperson working with ward councillors	Council Secretary working with Directors of Departments

Expected Standard:

Understanding of the history of Local Government demonstrated accordingly

Assessment

Read the following passage and answer question 1.

You have been tasked to review council records relating to council operations from colonial times to the present. Through the review you discover that with passage of time the law governing councils has undergone several reforms.

1. (a) Write an essay on the evolution of councils in Zambia from colonial days to date
- (b) Analyse the factors which led to local government reforms in Zambia.
2. Draw the structure of the local council
3. Describe the roles you would be playing if you held the following council positions:
 - a. A Mayor
 - b. A Town Clerk
 - c. A Councillor

Specific Competence

Learners To: Examine functions of Local Government

Learning Activities:*Examining functions of Local Government*Learning Environment Setup:

this activity can be done from the natural environment outside the classroom.

Teaching and Learning materials:

Chart showing functions of Local Councils

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Service Learning

Activity Process*1. Service Mapping in the Community

- In groups, learners walk around the local area or reflect on services seen daily and ask them to list services provided by the local council such as:
 - Waste collection
 - Water supply
 - Road maintenance
 - Market management
 - Health and Sanitation
- Follow up: learners to discuss the services which are well provided and which need improvement

2. Local Government Simulation game

- Assign learners roles such as mayor, councillors, and community members.
- Present a local issue (e.g., how to deal with illegal vending or waste collection; allocate funds for building a market or repair a road) and let the “council” discuss and make decisions.
- Learners to write a reflection paper on how local government debate and pass resolutions.

Content Tips

Local councils perform the following functions:

- Making By-Laws
- Providing clean and safe water to communities
- Providing accommodation and allocating plots for development
- Ensuring a clean environment and pollution control
- Allocating land for and maintaining graveyards
- Awarding trading licences to business persons

- Maintaining township roads and streets
- Building and maintaining trading places such as markets
- Providing street lighting
- Controlling the movement of livestock to and from the district
- Controlling drainage and sewage disposal
- City and town planning
- Providing recreation facilities such as swimming pools and play parks
- Collecting various kinds of levies, rates and rentals
- Providing health facilities and controlling epidemics in communities
- Providing fire-fighting services
- Promoting local tourism

Learning Activities

Identifying sources of revenue for Local Government

Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be conducted from both a natural and artificial setting

Teaching and Learning materials:

work cards showing different revenue sources, pictures depicting the various ways by which councils raise revenue.

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Inquiry Based Learning

Activity Process

1. Local Revenue Investigation Walk

- ☐ Take a walk with learners around the local area (or nearby market) and have learners look for signs of council revenue collection, such as
 - Market stalls (traders pay fees)
 - Bus stations (levies on transport operators)
 - Shops or billboards (licence fees)

Follow up: learners to create a list or chart of observed revenue sources

2. Revenue Source Sorting Game

- Provide work cards with different items (taxes, donations, licences, fines, etc.)
- Internal sources (e.g., market fees, business licences)
- External sources (e.g., government grants, donor funding)

Plenary session: class discussion on how reliable each source is.

Content Tips

To undertake daily operations, local councils need to raise enough revenue. The most common ways by which councils raise funds are:

- Business levies from business persons in the district
- Grants from government such as the Equalisation Fund
- Personal levies paid by workers annually to the council
- Issuance of Trading Licences
- Local revenue raising measures through such means as barriers, lodges, land rates, animal and crop levy among others
- Constituency Development Fund for service delivery to constituencies

Expected Standard:

Functions of Local Government examined appropriately

Assessment*Answer the following questions

1. Undertake research to identify local challenges and write a report based on the findings emphasising how the identified challenges can be addressed.
2. Imagine you are elected as a ward councillor, suggest the revenue collection strategies you would employ for local councils.
3. Outline the importance of Local Councils in promoting effective governance

Specific Competence

Learners To: Care for the environment

Learning Activities

Exploring the role of local government in caring for the environment

Learning Environment Setup:

this activity can best be undertaken from a natural environment in public places

Teaching and Learning materials:

Cleaning Equipment and materials, pictures depicting the various ways by which councils take care of the environment.

Suggested Teaching Method: Field visit

Activity Process

- Take learners to a public place such as a market, health centre, play park, bus station, public roads, dumpsites or shopping complexes to observe the sanitary and environmental condition in these places.
- While on the visit, ask learners to undertake a simple cleaning exercise. Learners can also undertake interviews with some people in those places on cleanliness and environmental care.
- After the field visit, ask learners to explain what they observed in terms of sanitation and environmental care and suggest measures to improve the situation.

Content Tips

One of the key functions of the local councils is to ensure environmental care and sanitation. This is mostly done through the following means:

- ☐ Cleaning public surroundings
- ☐ Tree planting in designated areas
- ☐ Providing and managing toilets in public places
- ☐ Providing rubbish bins in public places
- ☐ Developing and managing dumpsites
- ☐ Sewer and drainage control
- ☐ Sweeping of public places
- ☐ Provision of clean water and sanitation

Learning Activities

Identifying institutions and organisations that care for the environment

Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be conducted from the natural environment through visiting institutions

Teaching and Learning materials:

Chart showing institutions helping in environmental care.

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Field Visit

Activity Process

- Take learners to a nearby organisation involved in environmental care such as the Zambia Environmental Management Agency (ZEMA), Health Centre, the council or any other Civil Society Organisation.
- Learners to discuss what they learnt during the field trip and make presentations based on the discussions

Content Tips

Taking care of the environment is an important activity which cannot be left to the local authorities alone. Other institutions and organisations can contribute significantly towards environmental care. These may include the following:

- Zambia Environmental Management Agency (ZEMA)
- Line Government Ministries
- Civil Society (CSOs) involved in environmental Management
- None Governmental Organisations (NGOs) committed to environmental care
- Schools
- Religious bodies
- Households and Communities

Expected Standard:
Environment cared for accordingly

Assessment

Communities face a number of environmental challenges.

1. (a) Identify these challenges around your community and work in groups to address the identified challenges (such as by tree planting and public cleaning activity).
(b) Write a report on these challenges suggesting the best practices in addressing various environmental challenges.
2. Design posters carrying different messages on environmental care.

1.6.2 HOUSE OF CHIEFS*Introduction

This subtopic highlights the roles played by traditional leaders in the governance of a country. Through this topic, learners will be made to understand the composition and functions of the House of Chiefs in Zambia.

Specific Competence
Learners to: Demonstrate understanding of the role of traditional rulers in the governance of the country

Learning Activities

Exploring the role of the traditional rulers in the governance of the country

Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be undertaken from the chief's palace or village out of the school environment

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Pictures depicting some traditional leaders, traditional ceremonies and Charts showing Chiefdoms in Zambia by province and the roles of traditional leaders

Suggested Teaching Method: Field trips

Activity Process

1. Take learners to a nearest Chief or Village Headman/woman to learn about traditional leadership and its role in governance.
2. After the visit ask learners to discuss what they learnt and make presentations.

Content Tips

Traditional leadership has been at the core of Zambia's governance from pre-colonial, colonial and post-colonial eras. In pre-colonial era, traditional leaders were the only known leaders in the Zambian societies. The colonial administration practiced indirect rule by using traditional leadership to govern societies. Currently Zambia has a total of 288 Chiefs who play a significant role in the governance of a nation. They influence and motivate their subjects to achieve common goals and maintain order and harmony in communities. Traditional leaders play various roles in their communities which include:

- providing spiritual guidance to their subjects
- to preside over cultural, judicial and administrative activities in the chiefdoms.
- To resolve conflict among subjects
- To spearhead economic and social development in the community.
- To provide advice to political and religious leaders in society.
- They lobby for and spearhead developmental projects for their chiefdoms
- They are custodians of traditional leadership, customs and traditional land in their chiefdoms

Learning Activities
Illustrating the composition of House of Chiefs

Learning Environment setup:

This activity can be undertaken from a classroom environment

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Picture of traditional leaders in the House of Chiefs

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Debate

Activity Process
Simulation

- Allocate learners positions as members of the House of chiefs to discuss any issue related to traditional or national leadership.
- Ask learners to arrange desks as in the house of chiefs
- Learners to debate an issue as guided by the teacher

Content Tips

Article 169 of the Constitution of Zambia provides that there is established a House of Chiefs which shall consist of five chiefs from each province, elected by the chiefs in a Province, as prescribed.

According to Article 169 Clause 5 of the Constitution, the functions of the House of Chiefs are to:

- (a) consider and discuss a Bill relating to custom or tradition referred to it by the President, before the Bill is introduced into the National Assembly;
- (b) initiate, discuss and make recommendations to the National Assembly regarding socio-economic development in the province;
- (c) initiate, discuss and decide on matters relating to customary law and practice;
- (d) initiate, discuss and make recommendations to a local authority regarding the welfare of communities in a local authority;
- (e) make proposals on areas in customary law that require codification;
- (f) advise the Government on traditional and customary matters; and
- (g) perform other functions as prescribed.

Learning Activities*Identifying the roles of traditional rulers*Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be done from the classroom setup

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Charts showing roles of traditional rulers

Suggested Teaching Method:

Guest Speaker

Activity Process

- Invite a traditional leader to come and make a presentation on the roles of traditional rulers in society

- Learners to ask the guest questions on areas that need clarity
- Prepare a reflective paper based on the presentation made by the guest speaker

Content Tips

Roles of traditional leaders

- Preserving traditional customs and values
- Resolving disputes and maintaining peace
- Advocating for community interests and needs
- Mobilise community resources for development projects
- Encourage subjects to participate in national affairs
- Encourage subjects to take up public office
- Promote community cultural identity
- Promote moral uprightness and discourage subjects to be involved in corruption.
- Custodian of traditional land
- Conduct traditional ceremonies to strength their cultural heritage.

Expected Standard:

Understanding of the role of traditional rulers in the governance of the demonstrated correctly

Assessment

1. Write a proposal to the House of Chiefs for remedy on the customs and traditions that have a negative bearing on the lives of the youths.
2. Imagine you are a traditional leader, suggest measures you would put in place to improve the livelihood of your subjects
3. Undertake research on the influence of traditional leadership on the daily lives of the subjects

1.6.3 CENTRAL GOVERNMENT IN ZAMBIA*Introduction

This sub topics introduces learners to the concept of Central Government. Learners will be able to understand what central government is all about and how it relates with local government.

Specific Competence

Learners to: Demonstrate understanding of the relationship between Central Government and Local Government

Learning Activities

Illustrating how stronger relationships can be realised in school

Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be done in a classroom setup

Teaching and Learning Materials:

A chart showing the structure of Central Government

Suggested Teaching Methods

Simulation

Activity Process

- Ask learners to perform a simulation on how to strengthen relationships among themselves.
- Organise learners in groups and ask them to discuss how they can promote stronger relationships with each other as learners, with the teachers and with the community around
- Each group to make a presentation based on their discussion

Content Tips*Creating Strong Relationships in School

Teacher-Learner relationships can be strengthened through

- Showing passion
- Highlighting the good more than the bad side of individuals
- Creating of a safe and supportive environment for learners by showing empathy and understanding

Peer relationships among learners can be strengthened through:

- Collaborative activities and projects
- Promoting inclusivity and respect among learners
- Showing empathy and conflict resolution

Community-School Relationship can be strengthened through:

- Regular communication
- Establishment of Parent Teacher Committees (PTCs)
- Participating in voluntary activities towards the wellbeing of the school
- Celebrating school successes for learners and the school

Learning Activities

Examining the Organs of Central Government in Zambia

Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be conducted within a classroom setup

Teaching and Learning Materials:

A chart showing the structure of Central Government

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Role Play

Activity

Role Play: “Government in Action”

- Divide learners into 3 groups representing each organ.
- Assign roles: President/ Ministers (Executive), Members of Parliament (Legislature), Judges (Judiciary)
- Present a simple issue (e.g., a proposed law about school uniforms)
- Let each group act out their role:
 - Legislature debates and passes the law.
 - Executive carries out and enforces the law.
 - Judiciary interprets the law in a mock court case

Content Tips

The Central Government is the highest level of government in any country. It consists of the three organs of government, The Executive, the Legislature and the Judiciary as illustrated below:

GOVERNMENT ORGAN	RESPONSIBLE OFFICIALS	RESPONSIBILITY
Executive (Cabinet and Civil Service)	President Vice President Cabinet Ministers + civil servants	● Administration of the law and public policies (administration)
Legislature (Parliament)	Speaker Deputy Speakers Members of Parliament	● Law making (legislation)

Judiciary (Court System)	Chief Justice Deputy Chief Justice Judges Magistrates	● Interpretation of the law (adjudication)
--------------------------	--	--

Learning Activities*Discussing the functions of Central Government*Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be carried out from a classroom environment

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Learning Cards showing the different functions of the three arms of government.

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Problem Based Learning

Activity

Function sorting Game

- Prepare cards with various government activities (e.g., building roads, making laws, protecting the country).
- Learners work in groups to sort the cards under correct functions:
 - Legislature (make laws)
 - Executive (implement laws)
 - Judiciary (interpret laws)
- Each group explains why they placed each card under that category

Content Tips

The three organs of the central government play distinct roles. The legislature makes the laws, the judiciary interpret the laws and the executives carries out and enforces the laws. In order to carry out the laws, central government makes use of the civil service through different ministries, departments and agencies. Specifically, central government plays the following functions:

- Spearheading the provision of Social Services like education and health care
- Raising public revenue
- Building public infrastructure like roads, bridges, airports, railway etc
- Providing national security and defence
- Developing various public policies to solve public problems
- Creating a conducive environment for development

Learning Activities

Showing understanding of the relationship between Central and Local Government

Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be undertaken from a classroom environment

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Charts showing the structures of Central Government and Local Government

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Problem based learning and group work

Activity Process

“A Day in the Life” Diary

- Ask learners to write a short diary entry describing their day and highlighting services used (school, clinic, clean water, roads, etc.).
- Then label each service as provided by local or central government, or both.

Government Tree Poster

In groups, learners create a poster of a tree:

- Roots = central government
- Branches = local government
- Leaves = services provided

Class presentations: show how each part of the tree depends on the others.

Content Tips

- Central government uses a centralised approach to decision making.
- Local Government employs a decentralised approach.
- The Central Government consists of the cabinet headed by the President to make the decisions on behalf of the entire nation.
- In the Local Government, the council, headed by the Mayor/Council Chairperson working with councillors, make decisions at district level.
- While central government is the higher level of decision making, local government is the lower level but both aim at service delivery to the people.
- A process of transferring decision-making powers from the central government to the local government is known as decentralisation. This is to ensure quick delivery of services and effective participation of people in governance at local level.
- Policies such as international relations, national defence and public finance can be handled by central government while such policies like environmental protection, health care, education and housing can be a preserve of the local government.

Expected Standard:

Understanding of the relationship between Central Government and Local Government shown accordingly

Assessment

Do the following questions:

1. Draw the structures of both the central government and local government.
2. Imagine you were elected as a Member of Parliament or appointed as a Minister, what would be your role in either situation.
3. The judiciary plays a significant role in dispensing justice in society. Given a chance to analyse the Zambian judicial system, what areas of improvement would you suggest.
4. Undertake an analysis of newspaper articles relating to the operations of the councils, the legislature, the judiciary and executive.
5. The Constituency Development Fund (CDF) presents the best approach to the relationship between the Central government and Local Government. The central government provides the fund and the local government utilizes the fund on local activities. Based on this:
 - a. Discuss the effectiveness of the Constituency development Fund in communities
 - b. Demonstrate how Members of Parliament and Councilors help in implementing community projects through the Constituency development Fund
 - c. Identify the challenges experienced by communities in accessing or utilizing the Constituency Development Fund.

Chapter Summary

This chapter has covered a number of issues which include the following:

- Local government deals with decision making and implementation at district level
- Local councils are the pillars of governance under the local government system
- Local councils play various roles in providing services to communities
- Local councils are expected to raise revenue through various avenues
- The house of Chiefs helps traditional leaders to participate in the governance of a nation
- Central government consists of the legislature, the judiciary and the executive
- The cabinet is the pillar of governance under the central government system

1.7 TOPIC: PERSONAL FINANCE MANAGEMENT

INTRODUCTION

Personal finance management refers to the process of planning and controlling an individual's financial activities. The study of this topic will help learners to develop an understanding, awareness and appreciation of financial education; exploring the value and functions of money and subsequently be able to effectively allocate income, minimize expenses, and plan for financial goals. This awareness will lead to economic growth, personal development and sustenance. This topic has three sub-topics; Money, Savings and Spending.

General Competences

Financial Education	show the importance of money practice different ways of saving exhibit personal finance management
---------------------	--

HOOK

Imagine you receive an amount of money as a reward for outstanding performance. You can either spend it all on something fun, save it for something you really want in future or invest it to make more money. What would you do with it, and why?

Key Terms

Budgeting: tracking income and expenses to ensure spending is within limits and saving goals are met.

Saving: setting aside a portion of income for emergencies, future needs, or retirement.

Investing: putting money into assets to grow wealth over time.

Debt management: managing loans and other liabilities in a way that avoid excessive debt.

Tax planning: understanding how taxes impact finances and finding ways to minimize tax liabilities.

Circulation: refers to the total amount of monies that are actively being used for transaction in an economy.

Recession: is a period of decline in the Gross Domestic Product (GDP) for two or more consecutive quarters.

Crypto currencies: are digital currencies offering potential for high returns but also high risk.

1.7.1. MONEY*Introduction

This topic will help learners to have an understanding of the need to make money. The topic will deal with the value, characteristics and functions of money. This study of money will enable learners and society at large to be able to make money in order to sustain their livelihood, for personal development and reduce on the dependence syndrome. Learners will be acquainted with the right way of making money.

Specific Competences

Learner to: show the importance of money

Learning Activities

Discussing the concept and value of money

Learning environment setup:

This lesson should be taught in the natural setting that is the trading area

Teaching and Learning materials:

Zambian Bank notes and coins, Work cards with scenarios and discussion questions, Charts showing the value of money

Suggested teaching method:

Field visit and group discussion

Activity Process*1. Field Visit

- Take learners to a trading place to observe what goes on between the traders and the buyers.
- Learners can interact with both the traders and buyers asking questions regarding the value of money
- Learners to work in groups to discuss what they observed at the trading place
- Learners to make presentations based on their discussions.

2. Pair Work

- Arrange learners in pairs to undertake a discussion on why certain goods costs more than others.
- Each pair to make a presentation based on their discussion.

Content tips

The concept money

- Money is anything of value used to buy goods and to pay for services. It is a medium of exchange that is agreed upon or accepted to be used by society.
- In ancient times people used to exchange one item for another. That was referred to as barter system. For example, people would use salt to exchange with gold.
- It was later realized that barter system alone could not make trade easy because some article that were used in trade were very heavy and sometimes it was difficult to harmonise the article with the value of something that someone wanted.
- With the rise in civilization, bank notes and coins were introduced to easy transactions.
- The value of money is the amount of goods and services it buys or pays for. This means that the price is the value of the commodities and services expressed in monetary form.
- The general increase in the price of goods and services reduces the purchasing power of money leading to inflation.

Learning Activities

Describing the characteristics of money

Learning Environment Setup:

this activity can be undertaken from a classroom environment.

Teaching and Learning Materials:

work cards, bank notes and coins

Suggested Teaching Method:

Demonstration and group work

Activity Process

1. Demonstration

- Divide learners into small groups and distribute scenario cards on the characteristics of money namely portability, durability, divisibility, acceptability, scarcity and uniformity.
- Each group to design a chart describing the characteristic of money assigned to it.
- Learners can take time to discuss each of the characteristics of money

2. Role-play activity

- In pairs, learners to role play a market transaction, taking turns as buyer and seller.
- They must negotiate prices and transact
- Discussion on the characteristic of money involved in their transaction.
- Class discussion: reflect on the role of each characteristic in facilitating trade and maintaining a stable economy.

Content Tips

The following are some of the main characteristics of money:

- Portability- meaning money should be easy to carry.
- Durability- meaning that money should last for a long time without being damaged.
- Divisibility- Meaning that it must be easy to divide money into smaller units.
- Uniformity- This means that unit of money should be uniform in terms of design.
- Acceptability- meaning that money must be widely agreed upon and accepted by people as a means of exchange.
- Scarcity- Money should not be easy to find.

Learning Activities*Analysing the Functions of Money*Learning environment Setup:

This activity can be conducted from a classroom setup

Teaching and Learning Materials: play money, items to “buy” (could be classroom supplies, pictures of items, or toys); paper, markers, or digital tools for designing (if available)

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Demonstration

Activity Process

- Set up a classroom as a marketplace where learners act as sellers and buyers. Buyers to use their play money to buy items from sellers within the classroom.
- Learners should demonstrate how money performs its functions namely; a medium of exchange, store of value, measure of value, means of deferred payment.
- After the activity, learners to discuss how money helped them with these functions and how it made trade easier.

Content Tips

The functions of money are:

- ☐ Medium of exchange: it enables people to buy one item which they can later sell to get what they want.
- ☐ Store of value: People can convert their wealth into money.
- ☐ Measure of value or unit of account: Money is used as a standard to quantify the value of goods and services.
- ☐ Means of deferred payment: getting commodities and pay later.

Learning Activities

Explaining the Law of demand and supply

Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be carried out from a classroom environment

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Toy goods (can be small objects like balls, books, etc.), price cards, paper, pen, or digital devices for surveys.

Suggested Teaching Method:

Guest Speaker

Activity Process

- Invite a business person to come and present to the learners how the law of demand and supply influences their business.
- Learners to ask questions based on the explanation of the guest
- Class to hold a plenary session to discuss the issues raised by the guest speaker on demand and supply.

Content Tips

- Demand is the ability and willingness of people to pay for goods and services.
- Supply is the availability of goods and services on the market.
- The law of demand and supply explains the interaction between the two concepts.
- This law states that the price of the product will go down if the supply increases or the demand for the product is low. On the contrary, the price of the product will go up if the supply decreases or if the demand for the product is high.
- Sometimes the demand can match the supply. This is called equilibrium point. Here, the price of the goods seems to be fair to both the customers and the sellers.
- High Demand + Low Supply= High Price
- Low Demand + High Supply= Low Price
- Moderate Demand + Moderate Supply= Fair Price (equilibrium)
- High Demand + High Supply= High Price (exception to the law of demand and supply)

Learning Activities

Analysing Money Laundering Activities

Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be conducted from a classroom setup

Teaching and Learning Materials:

Scenario cards with descriptions of money laundering activities, poster board, markers, magazines for cut-out pictures, or digital tools.

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Role-Playing and demonstration

Activity Process*1. Role-playing money laundering scenarios

- divide the learners into small groups and give each group a different scenario card describing a money laundering case (e.g., a person using a business to hide illegal earnings, or someone transferring money through multiple bank accounts to hide its origin).
- Each group will act out the scenario, showing the steps involved in laundering money.
- After each play, have a discussion about how the illegal activity was conducted and how people can detect or prevent it.

2. Creating a Money Laundering Prevention Poster

- Learners to design posters that outline the dangers of money laundering and conduct a campaign around the school against the vice.
- Display the posters in the classroom or school to raise awareness about the issue.

Content tips*Money Laundering

- Money laundering means making money which has been acquired illegally look clean. This is done by passing illegally acquired money through a legitimate business or bank account in order to disguise its illegal origins.

Money laundering activities

- Money laundering activities include; Fraud, concealment or deception, theft, counterfeiting, collusion, forgery, false pretence among others.
- People who practice money laundering are those involved in drug trafficking, bribery, smuggling, terrorism and sell of illegal arms among others.

Effects of Money Laundering

- Leads to an increase in corruption and crime.
- Undermines national revenue collection
- Damages the integrity of the country
- undermines democracy and the rule of law.
- Affects direct foreign investment

Learning Activities*Evaluating Different Business Opportunities*Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be conducted from a classroom setup

Teaching and Learning materials:

pre-made evaluation worksheets, markers/pens, examples of business ideas (e.g. food stand, online shop, tutoring service)

Suggested Teaching Method:

Group Work

Activity Process*1. Business idea Evaluation Worksheet

- Organise learners in groups
- Provide each group with worksheets to help them evaluate different business ideas. The worksheet can include sections like:
 - Market demand: who is your target customer? Is there a need for the product/service?
 - Costs and Resources: what will you need to start this business? (e.g., materials, money, time)
 - Competition: are there other businesses offering the same or similar products/services?
 - Profit Potential: How much money do you expect to make, and how much will you spend?
 - Risks: what are the potential challenges or risks involved?
- After completing the worksheet, each group to present their evaluation of the business idea and discusses which ideas they think are the most promising based on their analysis.

2. SWOT Analysis for Business Ideas

- Provide learners with a template that divides a page into four sections: Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities and Threats (SWOT Analysis Template).
- In groups, learners will evaluate several business ideas using the SWOT analysis framework. For example:
 - Strengths: what are the advantages of this business idea? (e.g., low start-up cost, unique product).
 - Weaknesses: what are the drawback or challenges? (e.g., high competition, lack of initial investment).
 - Opportunities: are there external factors that could benefit the business? (e.g., growing market demand, new technology)
 - Threats: What external factors could harm the business? (e.g., economic downturn, changes in laws).
- Have each group present their SWOT analysis and discuss which business ideas appear to have the most potential based on their strengths and opportunities, and how to mitigate weaknesses and threats.

Content Tips

Evaluating business opportunities involves doing a thorough analysis of different factors to establish their potential and check if they match with the goals and resources.

How to Evaluate Business Opportunities:

Certain steps have to be followed to help someone to evaluate business opportunities.

The following are some of the step guides:

- Alignment with goals. Ensure the opportunity is in line with your objectives, values and mission.
- Market demand. Make a survey of the market to determine if there is a genuine demand for the product or service
- Competitive landscape. Analyse the competition so that you understand the market's saturation and to see the potential to engage in something different
- Target audience. Identify the target audience and their needs and preferences.
- Market size and growth. Make an estimate of the market size, growth potential and trends.
- Barriers to entry. Assess the ease or difficulty of entering the market, including regulatory requirements, competition and compliance.
- Revenue potential. Estimate the potential revenue and profit margins.

Expected Standard

Importance of money shown accordingly

Assessment

1. Write a business plan for a business dealing in a commodity which would be on high demand and more profitable.
2. Imagine you are working under the Drug Enforcement Commission (DEC), come up with an action plan on how to prevent money laundering activities.
3. Learners to Research on:
 - a. Factors that affect demand and supply
 - b. How the characteristics of money have influenced the development of different forms of currency from barter system to digital currencies.

1.7.2 SAVING

Introduction

This subtopic looks at saving and its importance. It also describes different ways of saving. Saving can be described as an act of setting aside a portion of one's income or resources for future use and not spent immediately. Assessment

Case study

Chilanga has just been offered a job as a sales officer. He earns k4,500.00 per month. His expenses are as follows; Rent- k1,500, Utilities - K400, Groceries- K1,000, Transport- K500, Student loan repayment – K500, and Credit card debit –K 300. Chilanga wants to buy a house in five years time. He has been advised to save 20% of his monthly income to achieve his goal.

Task:

1. As a financial adviser, you have been tasked to help Chilanga to create his savings plan. Using the information provided,
 - a. calculate how much Chilanga can realistically save every month to achieve 20% savings, taking into consideration the net income (after taxes) and monthly expenses.
 - b. Which expenses can Chilanga reduce on to have enough money for savings?
 - c. Identify some potential challenges or risks that Chilanga may face in achieving his saving goals.
2. If you have a plan to buy land in future, what would you do to save money towards your plan. Consider things like how much to save each month and where to put the money
3. Create a campaign that encourage your peers to save money. Your campaign can be in form of a poster, video, or digital presentation about why saving is important and how it can benefit them in the long term.

1.7.3 SPENDING

Introduction

Spending is when money is used to buy or pay for goods and services. People spend money in different ways, depending on their needs and wants. This subtopic focuses on being prudent about spending money.

Specific Competences

Learning Activities

Exploring the significance of practicing personal finance management

Learning Environment Setup:

This activity can be undertaken from a classroom environment

Teaching and learning materials:

budget templates, work cards.

Suggested Teaching Method:

Class simulation

Activity Process

1. Classroom economic simulation

- Create a classroom economy where students earn “classroom currency” (Points) for completing assignments, helping others, or exhibiting positive behaviour.
- Learners will have to budget their earnings to buy privileges (like extra recess time or choosing seats for a week).
- At the end of a term, discuss the lessons learned about money management and decision-making.

2. The cost of living

- Present a scenario requiring learners to make a personal budget based on a certain amount.
- Show the learners a simple budget Template.

3. Investment Decision-making

- Divide learners into small groups
- Present different investment opportunities (e.g., saving in a bank account, mobile money, starting a small business) and their associated risks and rewards.
- Have the groups decide where to “invest” their money and explain their reasoning.
- Discuss how investing can increase wealth over time and the importance of making informed decisions with money.

Content Tips

- Personal finance management is about making smart choices with money.
- Budgeting, saving, investing, and spending responsibly are all part of Personal finance management.
- Money managing can help avoid problems in the future, such as running out of money or not having enough for important things; and be financially prepared for the future.

Learning Activities

Demonstrating how to manage their Finances

Learning Environment Setup:

this activity can be undertaken from a classroom setup

Teaching and Learning Materials:

work cards or charts

Suggested Teaching Methods:

Role Play

Activity Process

1. Role-Playing a Financial Decision
 - Set up role playing scenarios where learners have to make financial decisions (e.g., deciding whether to buy a new phone or save for a future goal, or how to allocate money during a holiday season).
 - Learners to present their decisions to the class and explain why they made certain choices, considering factors such as needs and wants, budget, and long-term goals.
 - Follow up with a discussion on the consequences of poor financial decisions and how to make smarter choices.
2. Invite a Guest Speaker (a local bank representative or financial expert) to talk to the learners about how to manage money.

Content Tips

- Financial management is key when it comes to spending money. It is important to balance between needs and wants.
- Saving money for future goals or emergencies is just as important as enjoying the present.
- Creating a budget helps to prioritize spending and saving.
- Setting goals and saving money helps persons to be financially prepared for the future.

Expected Standard:

Personal Financial management exhibited accordingly

Assessment

1. Pupils to write a reflection paper: “How would practicing good financial management help you in future, when you are older and have bigger responsibilities?”

2. Personal Budget Project: Draw a simple budget based on monthly income. The budget should include categories like needs, wants, and savings.
3. Conduct research to investigate how people in the community practice prudent financial management.

Summary

- ☐ Money is a tool used to buy things, save for the future, and make investments.
- ☐ Income is money coming in like pocket money or gift while Expenditure is money going out on expenses.
- ☐ Money has several key characteristics that make it effective for us to use in an economy. These include: durability, portability, divisibility, uniformity, acceptability and stability.
- ☐ Money serves four primary functions in an economy: medium of exchange, unit of account, store of value and standard of deferred payment.
- ☐ The law of demand and supply is a fundamental principle in economics that explains how the prices and quantities of goods and services are determined in the market.
- ☐ Money laundering is the process of disguising illegally obtained money as legitimate income to hide its criminal origin.
- ☐ Business opportunities refers to favourable set of circumstances that allow an entrepreneur or company to create and grow a profitable venture.
- ☐ A budget is a plan for how to use money wisely. It helps one to understand how much money they have and where it goes.
- ☐ Saving means putting aside some money for future use rather than spending it all. It is important to save because it helps in emergencies and for things one wants in future.
- ☐ Smart spending: prioritise spending on needs first, then one has to decide if they wish to spend on wants based on how much money is left
